Q: JQuery or jQuery UI Slider - dynamically change elements I would like to extend and modify this, and add a couple things: Original Code: My new code for my needs: These two are almost identical, but for the life of me I can't figure out how to change the line: // get the value of the range var m = $("#ui-slider-range-min").slider("option", "values"); ... to include the MAX value of my "ranges" from a query I make into an array. I'm sure it's something simple but I've been dealing with this for a while without much luck and am thinking that my eyes are cooked. Your help is greatly appreciated! A: With jQuery 1.7 or above, you can use $.map() to iterate over an array of values. The following returns an array of the numeric values of the range: var max = Math.min( $("#ui-slider-range-min").slider("values"), $("#ui-slider-range-max").slider("values") ); var min = max; var m = $("#ui-slider-range-min").slider("option", "values"); var array = $.map(m, function(value) { return value; }); Q: Plethora of ancillary questions (characteristics) on a password Recently, a new password standard called
