DIGSYS Server is an easy-to-use, secure and efficient server solution for IT support staff to manage and secure their data remotely. It was specifically designed to handle day-to-day non-critical services, freeing IT resources to concentrate on more core tasks, such as providing enhanced applications and user access to secure and valuable data. See if DIGSYS Server is the perfect fit for your business. Cylance has developed a desktop anti-virus, Internet security and software management solution to secure and protect all workstations and business applications. Cylance Endpoint Server was built to complement its flagship solution, Cylance Anti-Virus, which has captured more than 100% market share in the enterprise. Unlike traditional desktop anti-virus solutions, the Endpoint Server scans applications in real time, so you can trust that it is protecting you from hidden threats and denying access to known viruses. The Endpoint Server manages applications, processes and system services to automatically and dynamically determine which software is available, installed, and updated. All software has a defined set of rules for determining installation, removal and update. The Endpoint Server can also protect against an increasing number of common threats and even automatically update itself. As the first computer security product to have a built-in firewall, the Endpoint Server manages the necessary rules for a fast, accurate and secure firewall to defend your IT infrastructure. Endpoint Server allows you to easily monitor and manage your computers remotely over the Internet. The system logs all activities and any issues are immediately displayed on a Web browser. Endpoint Server also creates an Internet-accessible image file of all systems and applications that you can share with your IT staff, partners, and
